OneBridgeSM Adds Merchant Processing

Partnership with NOVA Will Benefit Clients Entering Business Market

INDIANAPOLIS (December 14, 2005) – OneBridge, a credit and debit card processing company for financial institutions nationwide, announced today its partnership with Atlanta-based NOVA Information Systems. This partnership will enable OneBridge clients to grow their deposit base by helping them attract small business and commercial accounts with merchant processing services.

“Having a partner like NOVA whose background is focused on servicing the smaller ‘mom and pop’ retailers is a huge draw for our clients,” said OneBridge President Kim Graham Lee. “Additionally, we see a lot of value in NOVA being a direct provider of merchant services– not an ISO or MSP.”

NOVA specializes in providing integrated credit and debit card payment processing, electronic check conversion, electronic gift cards and other value-added services. With more than 800,000 merchant locations they are the third largest payment processor in the United States.

About OneBridge

OneBridge provides financial institutions with debit and credit card processing solutions to help them maximize the value of their card programs. OneBridge is a technology leader, offering web-based access to transaction activity, cardholder rewards loyalty programs, a dispute case management solution, and an advanced filtering system to help manage fraud.

Headquartered in Indianapolis, the privately owned corporation was founded in 1994 under the name AmeriCard. In 2004, the company changed its name to OneBridge to communicate its role at the core of card processing. One signifies a single, trusted source of knowledge, and Bridge represents connections and opportunities.
